Man, 65, charged in death of woman, 26, in his home

By TED OSHODI

A 65-year-old Eastside man has been charged with involuntary manslaughter in the April 4 slaying of a 26-year-old woman in his home.

Columbus police said Preston Edward Winfield, of 844 Taylor Ave. told them that he had been sleeping with Ramone Hunter, of 2464 Holt Ave., and that when he awoke he was unable to awaken the woman.

Winfield then called the Fire squad, which pronounced Ramone dead at 12 p.m., police said.

Ramone was a 1977 graduate of Mifflin High School, according to her mother, Mrs. Edith T. Hunter, of the Holt Avenue address.

Police had not established a motive in the murder of the woman at The CALL & POST edition time.

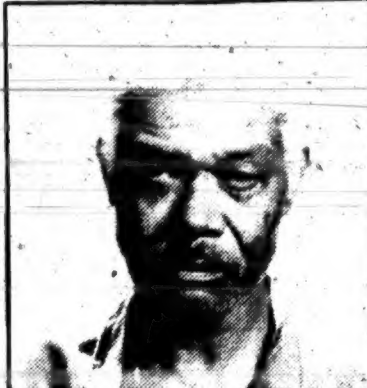

An autopsy showed she had died of internal bleeding caused by a "blunt force injury."

Winfield has been scheduled for a preliminary hearing April 15 in Franklin County Municipal Court. He was being held Monday in the County jail on a $50,000 cash bond, according to court records.

Homicide Sgt. Clifford Davis would not say whether Winfield and Ramone were lovers.

Ramone's mother, Mrs. Hunter told The CALL & POST that Winfield is a former employee of Ohio Malleable Inc., where

Three men charged in abduction of two teens

Three Columbus men, charged with the abduction of two teenagers at gunpoint, have been scheduled for a preliminary hearing April 17 in Franklin County Municipal Court. The men allegedly abducted the youngsters in the area of East State and South Third Streets about 12:30 a.m. April 8, according to Columbus police.

About 1:15 a.m., police arrested Vincent L. Woods, 18, of 1942 Maryland Ave., Apt. C.; Jerry R. Simmons, 22, of 332 N.

Governor's assistant leaves for tax appeals appointment

By GILBERT PRICE (COLUMBUS BUREAU)

One of the highest-ranking Blacks in the governor's executive offices has resigned to accept a gubernatorial appointment to the state Board of Tax Appeal.

Deane Buchanan, formerly legal counsel to Gov. Richard F. Celeste and later director of the State and Local Government Commission, has returned to law practice as a partner with the firm of Hardiman, Alexander, Buchanan, Pittman and Howland.

Buchanan will also be the first Black member of the Board of Tax Appeals in two years. Previously, Cleveland attorney Russell Adrine served from 1977 to 1983. The board hears appeals from decisions of the state Tax Commissioner; the 88 county boards of revision; and the 88 county budget committees.

Buchanan will serve a six-year term which ends February 8, 1991. He will be paid at a rate of approximately $19 per hour.

Buchanan called his stint with the governor "a very positive experience all the way round. It was a pleasure to work for someone for whom I have the highest respect, and help put his program across."

Buchanan's resignation leaves two other Blacks - Columbus school board member Gary Holland and intergovernmental coordinator Leonard Roberts - among the governor's senior staff.

Buchanan also speculated that "there will be another Black coming into the governor's office in a senior position," probably in one of three roles: as the legal counsel, an assistant to Chief of Staff Ray Sawyer, or as director of the State and Local Government Commission.

Riba, Rimani, and Mondibo (Richard, III), children of Drs. Richard and Barbara Kelsey, continue to excel in school and the community.

Riba, 13, is the recipient of Academy Awards in each of four categories of citizenship, scholarship, positive attitude, and effort at Franklin Alternative Middle School where she is an 8th grader. She is an "A" student and based on her high test scores she was recently awarded a scholarship for Phillips Academy in Andover, Massachusetts but will attend Walnut Ridge High School. She is the pianist for the Tiny Tots Choir at Shiloh Baptist Church.

Rimani, 12, a 7th grade Honor Roll student at Franklin Alternative Middle School has received the Citizenship Academy Award and was invited by Columbus School for girls to enroll there based on her superior test scores. She assists her sister with the choir at church. Both Riba and Rimani play the clarinet, sing in the school choir, and attend the Bettye Robinson School of Dance.

2ND OFFENSE IN 17 DAYS 13-year-old boy charged with sexual imposition

By TED OSHODI

A 13-year-old boy, charged April 7 with one count of gross sexual imposition for allegedly assaulting a 7-year-old girl in the women's restroom of a Westside movie theater, committed a similar offense March 15, said Monty Crockett, intake supervisor at the Franklin County Detention Center.

Crockett said Leon Bosley, a sixth grader at Mohawk Middle School, was arrested and charged with the first offense for an alleged assault on a 6-year-old girl in an alley on the Westside.

Bosley, of 244 S. Wayne St., was arraigned Tuesday in Franklin County Juvenile Court for the second offense. An unidentified man said outside the courtroom, "That boy sure needs some help."

Bosley, who was being held Tuesday in the detention center, has been scheduled for a trial for both offenses April 18 in the Juvenile Court.

Crockett said Bosley, on April 7, placed his hands on the 7-year-old girl's private area while she was using the toilet at the Great Western cinema. When the girl told him to stop, Crockett said, Bosley then spat on her.

The girl then left the restroom and told her cousin with whom she was at the theater. The cousin later relayed the incident to employees at the theater, Crockett said. Bosley was arrested by Columbus police shortly after.

The girl suffered bruises and swelling on her legs after being kicked by the boy, Crockett (Continued On Page 4B)

Contractor group supports state set-aside activities

(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

Some Cleveland-area contractors are steaming about a series of articles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. And, to express their concerns, they bought a full-page advertisement in The CALL & POST.

The Minority Contractors Association of Northeast Ohio (MCANO) bought the ad in response to a Plain Dealer series on minority business and the state's minority set-aside program. Entitled, "Behind the Mask," the series alleged that the state's program was riddled with minority firms which were actually "fronts" for white-owned businesses, particularly in the construction industry.

HB 584 requires the state to set aside five percent of the value of all the state's construction contracts and 15 percent of all contracts for goods and services for award to minority businesses (MBEs). In addition, the law requires white construction firms contracting with the state to award seven percent of the work which is subcontracted to minority businesses.

"The MBE program is super for legitimate businesses," Lloyd Johnson, president of MCANO, said. "The major problem is the financing of the enforcement of the law. The resources are spread too thin to do what they're supposed to do."

Robert Finch, vice-president of MCANO, agreed with Johnson's assessment of the program. "There was some truth to the articles, but we know that the state is attempting to resolve the problems. Although there are some fronts, that does not mean that the program has not been a success," Finch argued.

Finch noted that, in the construction awards for the W.O. Walker Rehabilitation Center, two of the members of MCANO—North Shore Iron Way and United Ready Mix—received set-aside awards from the state. In all, minority firms will receive over $12 million of the estimated $55 million awarded on the project—over 22 percent.

Although Johnson and Finch both admit that the problem of fronts is widespread, they believe there has been an effort in the state's program to eliminate the fronts.

In addition, they believe that there has been a marked increase in set-aside activity in northeastern Ohio in the past two years.

"The Celeste administration has been very helpful to us, and we don't want to see a dark shadow cast on it by something that was done in the past," Finch said.

The advertisement marks the first in a concerted effort by the state's associations of minority businesses to fight against what they perceive as attacks to the set-aside program.

Johnson argued that the attack "is from higher sources," referring to the major contractor firms and associations, which have consistently fought set-aside programs. "They're doing it systematically, and pointing out the negatives without looking at the positives. Some of the major contractors in the country are behind it." Johnson's group took out the ad because they believe that "until we make sure our voice is heard correctly, we're going to have problems."

45 AGAINST FAMINE—The night of January 28, a historic gathering of 45 superstars joined together as USA for Africa to record "We Are the World." Proceeds from the sale of the record and video will be donated to African famine relief. Ten percent of the profits will go to fight homelessness and malnutrition in the United States, and 90 percent will go to Africa. The song was written by Lionel Richie and Michael Jackson. "We Are the World" is the American response to the British artists, "Do They Know It's Christmas?"

Recording stars speak about world hunger

"We Are the World," written by Lionel Richie and Michael Jackson, and recorded by 43 other of the nation's top superstars benefits the hungry and homeless in African and this country.

It is reported that 90 percent of the proceeds will go to Africa and 10 percent to America's hungry and homeless.

Here are some remarks by the artist who participated in the making of "We Are the World."

"I don't think most of the people of the world knew about the disaster in Africa. The people who did know were the officials of the government, people who sit in high places, who have access to information. And I think that rather than respond to what was happening in Africa and try to head it off in the name of humanity, people saw an opportunity to manipulate the conditions in Africa towards ideological goals or to political ends. And I think therein lies the great human tragedy." —Harry Belafonte.

"For me (the session) is a great opportunity to contribute something to a beautiful cause, a wonderful cause. I'm honored to be asked to be a part of it. All the people here are ultra in their own right, and I'm happy to get to see them; we don't get to see each other much. I'm just as thrilled to be around them as they are to be around me." —Ray Charles.

"People are starving...they're dying, and they're being treated unfairly. We could do more—we ought to do more." —Bob Dylan.

"The session was really unique. It's really amazing to see all of these people together. Everybody got along really well. I was certainly excited to see Ray Charles." —Daryl Hall.

"I got involved after Bob Gordon talked to me about the project; I wanted to support what Lionel and Michael were doing, and I wanted to help the artist community do something positive. Music is so universal, whatever the genre; the idea of one world is universal, too, and so is the idea that people are starving. It's up to us as artists to try and do something to help." —Cindi Lauper.

"Everybody couldn't believe that they were all in the room together that night. The synergy was so strong—really powerful synergy. To me, it was a space-age Woodstock. Woodstock had 250,000 people and a film, but there will probably be a billion and a half people seeing this, and feeling that energy. It's just a question of how you capture it." —Quincy Jones.

"Hopefully, what we tried to

Amendment threatens integrity

Though there are no limits--nor should there be--on the inventiveness of those who would narrow or limit the effects of a Supreme Court decision which they find repugnant; there are, however, limits based on good sense and good faith.

Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) has recently proposed an amendment to Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This amendment--which is disguised as a "simple codification" of the "Hyde Amendment"--threatens the integrity of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and seeks to use this important and historic legislation for which so many bled and died as a basis for having Congress declare that civil rights protection begins at the moment of conception, contrary to rulings of the Supreme Court.

If this amendment is allowed to pass, it would open the door for the Civil Rights Act--which was enacted (we might remind Senator Hatch) to enforce the constitutional right to vote, eliminate discrimination in public accommodations, protect the constitutional rights of all Americans in public facilities and public education, and prohibit discrimination in employment--to become little more than a vehicle for every controversial cause. We believe that S522, The Abortion Funding Restriction Act, has no place in the Civil Rights Act.

Moreover, we sense that this rush to action on S522 is a thinly-veiled effort to confuse the critical debate over the Civil Rights Restoration Act and will interfere with Congressional efforts to restore longstanding laws protecting the rights of minorities, women, the disabled, the old and the young.

We urge the abandonment of this ill-advised assault on the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Casey vs. Copeland

Terry Casey, executive director of the Franklin County Republican Party, has emerged as a defender of the public's purse and the elections process. Unfortunately, he has done this in regards to the candidacy of a Black woman, Cathy Copeland, for the post of Executive Director of the Franklin County Board of Elections.

Casey has rated Ms. Copeland a "zero" in administrative experience and elections knowledge. He argues that such a person should not be placed in a position of responsibility for overseeing a $2 million budget and 40 full-time staff members.

Casey protests that he is only concerned about the integrity of the elections board, but it appears he does protest too much. Casey can come up with only one another candidate he finds acceptable--a board of elections staff person with direct supervisory responsibility for two other staff people.

Casey will probably lose on his effort to keep Copeland from receiving the appointment, since the Secretary of State (a Democrat) breaks all ties at local boards of elections. However, as Chairman of the board, he has threatened to set Copeland's salary so low that she would, in effect, be working for nothing.

It seems that when Blacks are being considered for key positions, the issue of "qualifications" always enters into the picture. Apparently to Casey, Copeland's experience as chief assistant to the Franklin County Commissioners and as an assistant coordinator in the Office of Litter Control--as well as her Master's degree in Public Administration--are insufficient to qualify her for this post. Not only that, but it appears that, if Casey can't get his way legitimately, he will get it by virtue of his powers as the chair.

Of course, Casey said that "Don Spicer's probably painting this as racist." Spicer didn't say anything about his position. We would never presume to argue such a position; after all, we have been told it is simply a matter of "qualifications." However, Black people also recognize that excuses are always given by those who would impede our progress. It appears that such is the case right now.

Black Democrats wain

In recent months Gov. Richard F. Celeste's judicial appointments have been the topic among many Black Democrats around Ohio who have been wondering when they were going to get their share of the pie.

Celeste drew the wrath of Toledo residents when in February he by-passed a qualified veteran Black judge and appointed a friend with less qualifications to a vacancy on the Sixth Ohio Courts of Appeals.

Lucas County Common Pleas Court Judge Robert V. Franklin was the senior judge on the bench and highly recommended as the replacement for Andrew Douglas who was elected to the Ohio Supreme Court. It is the usual procedure for the judge with the most seniority of the controlling political party to be elevated to a higher court when an opening exists.

Instead, Celeste appointed his friend Arthur Wilkowski, a Toledo lawyer and former member of the Ohio House of Representatives.

In Franklin County, although Celeste has reportedly seriously considered Blacks for judicial appointments, no appointments have been forthcoming. There are no Black Democrats on any court bench in Franklin County.

The argument that there are no qualified Black attorneys is stale. Keeping in mind that appointments are made based on the candidate's presumed ability to win an election, the noticeable lack of a Black appointment is suspect, and Celeste's appointees have no track record to boast about. Celeste will run on his record in 1986.

Black Republicans are 'Third Force'

"A vanishing breed, or a developing breed?" That is the question Ken Blackwell, Republican city council member in Cincinnati, asked when he was told The CALL & POST was doing an article on Black Republicans.

He later answered his own question, arguing that "there are many more (young Blacks) who have a commonality of thought" with the Republican party than is otherwise believed.

These young Blacks are at the forefront. Tony Warren, running for Columbus City Council; Rhonda Beckham, who was a candidate for state representative in Cincinnati; Julie Heard and Steve Cheek, active Republicans in Columbus, and Joe Gilyard, who is running against Ken Johnson for the 4th ward council post in Cleveland--all share certain histories with Ken Blackwell; young, articulate, concerned about issues that affect Black people--and decidedly, aggressively convinced that their membership in the Republican party is the way to achieve those goals.

Each came to their positions in different ways, but they all reflect common themes: Blacks should not limit themselves to one party; Black people should move away from "social welfare" answers to problems, and toward a market system approach; the issues that affect Black people are better handled by Republicans, and their "rugged individualism," than the Democrats with the welfare state. Joe Gilyard and Julie Heard later

Black voters must be carefully calibrated not to set off bombs: after all, any politician knows that Blacks are often cynical about calls for "law and order" as code

Blackwell, this approach makes it difficult for white Republicans to reach a point of compromise, because they are convinced that even their best efforts will not result in an increase in Black voting participation.

However, the Black Republicans run up against a problem: the "chicken or egg" syndrome. In politics, people generally do not vote in expectation that the party for which they are voting will reflect their own self-interest; they vote for the party that already does.

Blackwell is convinced that Black people will become "politically sophisticated enough to return a competitive edge to our vote." Blackwell also has a message to Black politicians: "we will never move above the rung of being the city council member elected from a predominately Black district," Blackwell says, until the Black politician attempts to represent a broader constituency than just the interests of Blacks.

Blackwell, Gilyard, Cheek, Heard, Beckham--these young politicians, and more like them, are looking to change the face of Black politics. If they can also change the face of the Republican party, it will benefit both themselves, and the Black people they seek to represent.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By GILBERT PRICE

gely got into Republican politics because an opportunity was presented to them--and there was interest in their ideas. Ken Blackwell, the Charter party in Cincinnati because of "very grave philosophical differences" with the group, and became a Republican because there was "more philosophical compatibility there."

These young politicians are a "third force" within the political movement--neither fish nor fowl, they are diametrically opposed to much of the social and political welfarism they find in the Democratic party, yet are often more liberal on issues such as affirmative action than their Republican brethren.

Often, they focus on issues such as crime. As Gilyard pointed out, crime is an issue which uniquely affects the Black community more than any other. Yet, an appeal to words for legalized racism. That is why Ken Blackwell says he pushes for "law and order and justice."

Being neither fish nor fowl, they often must war with the fishes. Steve Cheek admits, "there are elements of the Republican party that might not like Steve Cheek."

Blackwell sees "two belief systems" in the Republican party. "One says, 'we don't need to open the door. The other sees it in the party's interest to broaden its base.' All these Republicans agree with Julie Heard when she says, "we as Black people have allowed (the Republican party) to become the (party of the white majority). We have polarized ourselves." To

Notorious South Africa strikes again

Twenty-five years to the day after the notorious Sharpeville massacre, South African police on a crowd of Black people, killing and wounding dozens. The massacre at Uitenhage cannot be seen as an isolated incident. Rather, it is an integral part of South Africa's racist ideology and violent policies.

It is in the interest of whites and the Black majority for change to come peacefully. But the brutality of government policies and its refusal to negotiate South Africa's future with its Black majority make peaceful change less likely.

The latest bloodbath is the result of overt government violence, but it should not obscure the daily violent assault on the fundamental rights of the majority of South Africans denied political representation, elementary human rights, and even citizenship in their own land.

Concerned people everywhere in the world are appalled by the apartheid policy and find it difficult to justify normal relations with a state that has no legitimacy, since it excludes the vast majority of its people from representation.

Even conservative Americans who honestly believe in long-term evolutionary change are fed up, and are insisting that our government take decisive measures to change its friendly policy toward South Africa.

Those conservatives were as shocked as anyone else when they heard President Reagan tell a press conference that both the peaceful demonstrators and the police shared blame for the massacre.

Those remarks, along with his refusal to visit a former Nazi concentration camp on the 40th anniversary of the Holocaust, betray an insensitivity to human suffering and to American ideals of freedom and liberty.

Top Administration officials have hastened to condemn the latest South African outrage, but unless they change the policy of "constructive engagement" that is seen by South Africa as a continued license for oppression, such statements will ring hollow.

TO BE EQUAL

By John E. Jacob

The rest of his statement, about "an element in South Africa that does not want a peaceful settlement, who want trouble in the streets" was remarkable. It is as if the prisoners in a Russian gulag were to be blamed for wanting

One source of American pressure on the South African government comes from corporations doing business there. In recent months I have talked with many corporate executives who are deeply troubled by South Africa's inhumane policies and by the economic inefficiencies caused by apartheid. Many are coming to the conclusion that their continued presence in South Africa no longer be worth the trouble.

Others believe they still may be able to do some good by staying. They have integrated their work force, upgraded living standards for their Black employees, and now are beginning to speak out openly against apartheid.

They say that pulling out removes a major pressure point on South Africa -- the threat to withdraw U.S. investments.

In fact, by recognizing and negotiating with Black trade unions, and by training and employing skilled Black workers the apartheid system is undermined.

But the big question is time. Time is running out for South Africa. It is also running out for America's opportunity to influence the future and assure a peaceful end to apartheid and minority dictatorship.

Children stand to lose $37.6 billion

By MARIAN WRIGHT EDELMAN

To judge from his proposed budget, President Reagan clearly sees the need for investment in the weapons of war. He has asked Congress for a record $313.7 billion for the Defense Department--up eight percent even after inflation over last year. His defense budget stresses long-term planning to develop the fighting forces of the future.

But the President apparently sees no comparable need to invest in the future of our nation's children--especially minority and poor children. While his military spending soars, the President proposes to cut another 5.2 billion from critical programs that help poor families and youth. His children's budget sacrifices the long-term dividends that could be yielded from an investment in youth in favor of short-term savings that will barely make a dent in the huge budget deficit.

The long-term impact of these short-sighted cuts is easy to predict. Children and families who are denied these basic supports will end up costing society more in the long run. Many children who do not get preventive health care or adequate nutrition will end up with costly health problems; many youth who do not get adequate job training or educational opportunities will end up on the streets, on drugs, or in jail.

Under the President's long-range budget projection, children will lose a total of $37.6 billion through 1990. By 1990, military spending will reach an astronomical $428.6 billion. What sense is there in investing in long-term growth in military spending, when we are stunning the growth and development of so many of our children?

AN OPEN LETTER

To: Gov. Richard F. Celeste

Dear Governor Celeste:

We, the members of the Minority Contractors Association of Northeast Ohio (MCANO) are greatly concerned with the series of articles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer entitled, "Behind the Mask," which detailed the alleged failures of the state's minority business assistance programs.

The Plain Dealer alleged that most of the state's minority businesses were "fronts" for white businesses; that contract awards to minority firms consistently exceeded the state's estimated cost for the work awarded; that the state enforcement of laws against fronts has been lax, and that the state and other governmental entities had been victimized by poor performance and shoddy workmanship by minority firms.

We at MCANO feel that we have been partners with your administration in providing tangible benefits to minority communities across the state. We point with pride at several member firms which have, through the efforts of the state -- and the valiant efforts of the state's Black legislators -- been able to grow and expand their operations.

We are concerned because we feel the series of articles does not reflect the effort this administration has expended to enhance the minority set-aside program. It is true that some minority firms are actually "fronting" for majority firms; but the series did not really clarify that most of these "fronts" were certified by the previous administration, and that almost every firm mentioned in the articles has been under investigation by the State -- or has already been decertified.

It is true, as the series mentioned, that the state has historically been slow in paying all contractors; but it did not reflect the fact that you had pledged to MCANO on October 6, 1984 that you would push legislation which will require prompt payment -- and the proposed legislation is now law.

It is true that some bids by minority firms come in over budget -- just as some bids by majority firms do. What was not mentioned is that the law already has safeguards to ensure against the state spending more than has been estimated, and NO CONTRACT HAS BEEN AWARDED TO A MINORITY FIRM WHICH EXCEEDED THE STATE'S SAFEGUARDS.

We are convinced that the administration of this program under your administration has resulted in positive benefits, both for the citizens of the state and the legitimate minority firms, like the members of MCANO, which are doing business with the state.

We point with pride at the fact that you have appointed one of our members, Robert Finch, to the Ohio Advisory Board of Examiners of Plumbing Inspectors. We feel this appointment reflects the confidence you have placed in the character and quality of the state's minority contractors.

We are not quarrelling with this administration's commitment to progress for minority firms. However, we are concerned with the tenor of attacks which have been coming from the news media in recent weeks. Recently, we have seen articles in Ohio and other media focusing on the problems and failures of minority assistance programs. It is sad to see the one-sided, narrow reporting which seems to point to these programs uniformly as failures, when there have been so many documented successes.

By the line of reasoning we are seeing, the same media should be calling for the elimination of defense spending just because there have been some documented abuses in defense procurement.

These recent attacks have caused us to redouble our efforts in behalf of those who have helped us, such as the Black Elected Democrats of Ohio, who were instrumental in the passage of HB 584 legislation.

We are encouraging our members to participate in the BEDO annual banquet, to be held May 11 in Columbus, because we want to show our solidarity with our legislative supporters.

We are also encouraging our members to more aggressively defend their interests in the enhancement and further development of legislation assisting minority firms, because we still have a long way to go.

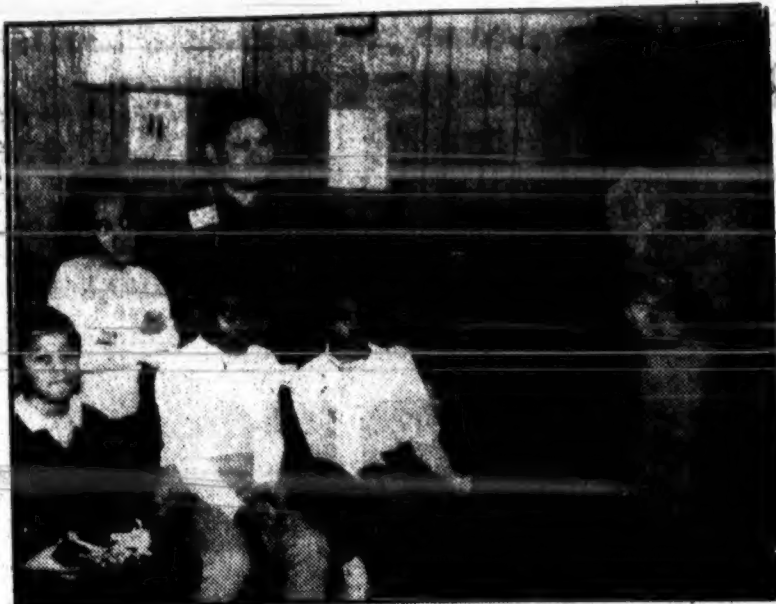

We recognize there are some problems. We commend your administration for working to resolve those problems, and we want you to know that you have our wholehearted support for your efforts in the future.

Hilltop UMC to expand services in community

By TED OSHODI
Sunday school, morning and evening fellowships are not the limits of community services at the 80-year-old Hilltop United Methodist Church (UMC), 99 S. Highland Ave.

The church, founded in September 1905, began a tutoring program for all ages in January of this year in response to the need of Highland Elementary School and members of the community, said Rev. Eugene Blair, pastor.

The four-hour session Adopt-A-School program, which is conducted three evenings a week, helps students with problems in their studies, and provides assistance to other members of the community.

Literacy Council, is also held at the church every Thursday. The program applies the Laubach method of teaching, he said.

"Most of the 30 senior citizens that come here every Thursday for the 11:30 a.m. lunch, recreational activity, workshops on health care, are not members of the church," Blair explained.

He said the church is trying to raise $9,000 to buy a van to provide transportation for senior citizens. If you wish to make donations, call 279-8086 for further information.

Food pantry is another program run at the church in cooperation with the Westside Fish, a hunger task force organization.

Rev. Blair said supportive groups in the church include the United Methodist Women, Methodist Youth fellowship and the United Methodist Men.

As part of its community activities, Rev. Blair said the church will hold Ecumenical Vocational Bible School, June 24-28 with Second Community Church on S. Highland Ave.

Rev. Blair, a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, received a calling three years ago. Blair, 30, is a graduate of Methodist Theological School, Delaware, Ohio.

In June, he will be ordained as Elder in a ceremony at the West Ohio annual Conference in Lakeside, Ohio.

Rev. Blair said the church plans to continue its evangelical effort in the community, and have fellowships.

The program is run in conjunction with J.J. Ashburn Youth Center, at Oakley Baptist Church, 64 S. Highland Ave.

The church is blessed with twelve volunteer tutors, one of whom is Allison Jones, a fifth grader at Columbus School for Girls, Rev. Blair added.

Aside, Hilltop operates a Choir Plus, an after school program that is geared to helping children from first to sixth grade when their parents are at work.

The program, conducted every Thursday, includes a 30-minute music class, Bible study and a recreational activity, according to Rev. Blair.

Travel broadens horizons; churches plan many trips

By ELIZABETH LANEY

Travel enlarges or widens one's vision...it rejuvenates tired and satiated ideas, refreshes and stimulates conversations, and starts the energetic flow of one's adrenalin...all through the process of travel.

Several Columbus churches are offering various trips to their members and friends, because of the Baptist World Alliance to be held in Los Angeles from July 2 through 7 with Hawaii as an optional extension. Church folk have been packing and unpacking since last fall when the tours were first announced.

The Eastern Union Women's Auxiliary, lead by President Joan Cousins, Chillicothe is offering a trip to the 15th Annual Baptist World Congress by Greyhound, to depart June 27 and return July 10, for $625 per person. Deposit and first payment of $225 must be made by March 31; $200, paid by April 27, $200 by May 25 and the balance by June 15. The trip includes tours through Yellowstone National Park, Grand Canyon, and the Oral Roberts Institutions. "If your gas or oil bills are high, add on a heat pump."

You can cut your heating bills by adding a heat pump to the gas or oil furnace you already have.

An add-on heat pump saves you money because it shares the job of heating your home. You just add it on to your existing furnace. It goes on only when electricity is the most efficient, economical source of heat.

And all summer long, you get the comfort of air conditioning. Because in the summer, the heat pump reverses itself and pumps the heat out of your house while keeping the cool air circulating.

Because an add-on heat pump uses your existing furnace, most installations don't involve any changes to your ductwork.

If you think about the savings, the air conditioning, and the low cost of installation, adding on a heat pump is a pretty smart move. Call us and find out more.

SOUL STIRRING REVIVAL Conducted By NATIONAL EVANGELIST,

MARIA GARDENER

A soul-stirring Revival will be conducted by National Evangelist, Maria Gardener of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, beginning, April 14 thru 19th, at Meredith Temple Church of God in Christ, 1158 Mt. Vernon Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, where the Elder Hezekiah Meredith is Pastor. If you have never heard her... then you must... and if you have heard her, then you must hear her again, for she is a powerful, dynamic, speaker concerned about fallen humanity. She has travelled extensively throughout the United States and foreign fields electrifying her audiences, telling the story of God's love for mankind. Services will begin nightly at 8 o'clock P.M.

Special service Sunday morning,
April 14 at 11:00 A.M.
Come early to get a seat!

GRAPEVINE FOP strip show wasn't the first

By JOHN E. JONES JR.

Why all the furor over a recent male strip show for the ladies of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP)? It really wasn't the first time the guys took their clothes off for the FOP.

It might even be a regular event, for all we know. One of the dancers who performed a few months ago for the lady cops told me, "They really went. I guess they don't get to be wild and crazy very often."

He said that he really whipped them into a frenzy. The resident CALL & POST Wiseacre said, "The real man bites dog story would be if the male strippers danced for the male cops."

Margaret Hairston was completely surprised that she had been appointed to the city's sewer and water board, when she was contacted by CALL & POST scribe Gilbert Price.

It seems that Price was the first tell her of the appointment. "Mayor Rinehart's always getting me in trouble," she told him.

Sign of the times: On Monday, April 1, as I passed a Food Stamp Distribution Center on North High Street, there were about 30 people lined up outside the door. It was only 6:15 a.m.

COLUMBUS PREMIERE — The Columbus NAACP will sponsor the Columbus premiere of the Longest Struggle, Tony Brown's production of the history of the NAACP. The showing will be at 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 16. Actress Janice Nunn-Nelson, pictured above, sings "Life Every Voice and Sing," as she leads the reenactment of the NAACP's 75 year march for justice. Tickets are available at the Singletary PlazaMart or by calling the NAACP office, at 461-1108.

Man held for assault

A Columbus man who allegedly attempted to run over a police officer with his car April 7, has been charged with felonious assault, operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol and speeding.

Vonseal Simmons, 44, of 1155 E. 26th Ave. was being held Monday in the County jail on a $50,000 cash bond. He has been bound over to the Franklin County grand jury for indictment decision.

Homicide Sgt. Charles Nash said Officer James Nardelli, of 120 W. Gay St., stopped Simmons about 3:51 a.m. for a traffic violation at the intersection of E. 26th and Cleveland Avenues.

As Nardelli tried to arrest Simmons, he allegedly threw the officer to the ground and attempted to run his car over him, police said.

Police arrested Simmons at his home shortly before 4 a.m. Monday, police said.

Music Festival sponsored by PTA

"Sounds Fantastic," co-sponsored by the Columbus Public Schools and Columbus Council of PTAs, will be held at 8 p.m., Friday, April 19 in St. John Arena.

Approximately 3,500 music students will perform a variety of choral and instrumental selections. The grand finale will feature all the students in a combined performance of favorite American music.

Tickets are available at the PTA office from April 15, through 19.

Lauchlin Curran is a teacher. And a scientist. And an engineer. He's genuinely concerned about other people. And he has expressed some of that concern in his participation with the National Fund for Minority Engineering Students.

The fund is a non-profit organization attempting to increase the number of Blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos, Mexican-Americans and American Indians enrolled in engineering schools.

These under-represented minorities constitute a rich untapped resource to help fill the growing need for engineers; a need that is expected to continue through the mid-1990's.

IBM's social service program enabled Dr. Curran to take a year's leave to assist the fund. And IBM continued to pay him his full salary.

The National Fund for Minority Engineering Students is a very worthwhile program. We think so. Lauchlin Curran thinks so. But most important of all, lots of minority engineering students enrolled at colleges and universities all over the country think so.

Xavier U. president pushes UNCF schools

By GILBERT PRICE

Norman Francis, president of Xavier University in New Orleans, Louisiana, delivered a message of both distress and hope to the estimated 1,000 business, civic, and community volunteers who gathered at the Hyatt Regency April 3 to kickoff the 1985 United Negro College Fund (UNCF) campaign.

Francis, who is also UNCF President, noted that the President's Commission on Excellence in Education, of which he had been a member, pointed out that "for millions of young Americans, the system (of public school education) wasn't working as well as it should," and that the minority school population had been "least well-served" by the schools.

Yet, Francis also expressed "concern that in our rush to achieve excellence, we should not forget equity"—our effort, as a society, to give each child a fair chance to achieve his or her potential.

Francis painted a picture of Blacks as a people "making progress falling backward," noting that the percentage of young Blacks finishing high school actually dropped two percent in the last 15 years; the number starting college has dropped three percent; the percentage of Black students enrolled in college today has dropped from a high of eight percent to only 4 percent—the same level as 1972; and the median income of Blacks compared to whites has regressed to the 1960 level.

In this environment, Francis calls it a "myth" that "there is no longer a need for institutions like the institutions in the United Negro College Fund," arguing that the schools are a "national treasure" in their training of approximately 40 percent of all Black college graduates in the United States.

Francis was heartened by the support the UNCF has received in Columbus, congratulating the integrated crowd as a model for the UNCF fundraising effort nationwide.

"To paraphrase a Stevie Wonder song," Francis told the appreciative audience, "I have come just to say, 'we love you' for your support throughout the years." Francis also noted the 25 years of dedicated service that James Allen of Columbus, now the UNCF Vice-President for Training, has given to the nation's predominately-Black schools.

The fundraising goal for the city of Columbus is $621,000. The drive also plans to collect $2.7 million within Ohio, and a total of $36 million nationwide.

McDonald's restaurant chain, represented by Carl and Doris Osborne, began the fund drive with a check for $37,850, collected through the auspices of Columbus-area McDonald's restaurants.

START OF A BIG YEAR—This year's United Negro College Fund (UNCF) drive has a goal of $621,000 for the Columbus area, $2.7 million for Ohio, and $36 million nationally. Reviewing the kickoff plans are, from left, James Allen UNCF vice-president for training; Arthur Herrmann, chairman, of the

CMACAO board shaping up

By TED OSBODI

The Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce has reviewed and supported the appointment of seven people for the private sector to the CMACAO board of trustees as recommended by City Council President Jerry Hammond and the agency's Executive Director Curtis Brooks.

The board passed a resolution at its March 28 meeting, requesting Hammond and Brooks to join forces in coming up with names of seven representatives for the private sector.

CMACAO board must comprise seven representatives each from the public, private and the low-income sectors of the community, according to the Ohio Department of Development.

In an April 8 letter to Hammond, John S. Christie, president of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, said: "The Chamber would support the recommendation being made by President Hammond.

However, in no way are these representative appointments of the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber was only asked to review the names that were going to be submitted as representatives of the private sector."

While seven persons have been appointed to the private sector, Franklin County Commissioners were able to name Tuesday six of the seven people to the public sector.

Commissioner Dorothy Teater told THE CALL & POST Tuesday that the seventh person will be appointed "sometime next week."

Appointed to the private sector were: Carlene Alexander, instructor at the Columbus Technical Institute; Sheila Billingslea, fiscal officer, Alvis House; Burt Schildhouse, coordinator, Small Business Enterprise Center; Sanford Harper, businessman, Harper Industries; John Spinelli, director, Neighborhood Business Development, Columbus Chamber of Commerce; Jack O'Donnell, district manager, Community Relations, Ohio Bell, and Michael Coleman, Columbus attorney.

Meanwhile, the public sector appointees are Mayor Dana G. Rinehart, Jerry Hammond, Councilman John Maloney, Bobbie Hall, county treasurer, Palmer McNeal, county auditor, and State Rep. Ray Miller.

CMACAO has been rocked by a succession of crises, stemming from attempts to oust Brooks and Board President Irene Radcliff, plus the firing of its comptroller Sue Williamson.

Congressmen Chalmers P. Wylie and John Kasich requested an audit of the agency after the county commissioners, Mayor Rinehart and Hammond discussed its internal problems with them.

Officials from the federal Government Accounting Office (GAO) are currently auditing the agency.

Marsalis at Mershon

Wynton Marsalis, the 23-year-old music whiz who is equally talented in both jazz and classical music, is set to astound audiences at the Ohio State University when he and his Grammy Award-winning quintet bring their inventive brass talents to Mershon Auditorium on 30 W. 15th Ave. at 8 p.m. on Sunday, April 14.

At age 14, Marsalis debuted with the New Orleans Philharmonic performing selections by Haydn and Brahms. At 17, he enrolled in Juillard's School of Music and that same summer, he joined Art Blakey and the Jazz Messengers.

In 1981, Marsalis took a leave of absence from Blakey to go on the road with The Herbie Hancock Quartet. This move resulted in a lot of press exposure here and abroad. Wynton has since performed across the U.S. at such places as Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C., and New York's Avery Fisher Hall, opening for Sarah Vaughn. In addition, his European tour included stops in France, Spain, and the Hague.

His most recent feat was winning simultaneous Grammy Awards in both jazz and classical music.

Dundee, via a telephone hookup said, "Being associated with Jerry Page is going to be a kick."

Page will work with trainer John Russell, trying to correct such things as standing up too high.

Presently 150 lbs., Page says he will lose five and fight as a junior welterweight. While Page is willing to train here, Miami or wherever Angelo requires," he says he will retain his residence in Columbus.

Page, who won Olympic gold as a light welterweight, grew up in the Windsor Terrace area and attended school at Windsor Elementary, Linmoor Jr. High, Linden-McKinley S. High and Ohio State.

Weaver Ray receives special honors, group celebrates 36 years of service

The Susan B. Weaver Ray was honored for outstanding fund raising efforts at the annual Ray Appreciation Luncheon hosted by the Columbus Cancer Clinic in March.

The Weaver Ray contributed $2,001.83 to support the Cancer Clinic's home care program which assists cancer patients and their families in Franklin County.

April marks the 36th anniversary of the Ray, which has given service to the Black community and carried the Cancer Clinic's message since their inception. In celebration, the Ray is holding a Community Tea, open to the public, at the Columbus Cancer Clinic, 550 Thomas Lane, on Wednesday, April 17 from noon until 4 p.m. There is no charge to attend.

Mayor Washington will be the keynote speaker at the banquet at 7:30 p.m., Friday, April 12.

Some of the nation's leading Black journalists will discuss how the American media covered Jesse Jackson's 1984 presidential campaign at 8:45 a.m., Saturday, April 13.

Among the journalists participating in the roundtable discussion will be:

Barbara Reynolds, formerly of THE CALL & POST and currently with U.S.A. Today; Don Wycliff, New York Times; Chauncey Bailey, Detroit News; Don Winbach, Time; Monroe Anderson, Newsweek; Salim Muwakkil, Indies Time; Barbara Banks, The Buffalo Challenger; Alice Palmer, New Deliberations; and Gwen McKinney, The Third World Journalists Association and Black Enterprise.

They will be joined by Gilbert Price of THE COLUMBUS CALL & POST.

Moderator will be Robert T. Starks, Northeastern Illinois University. Discussion leader will be Edward Palmer, the Black Press Institute.

Four workshops will be held Friday, April 12 and will be open to the public for a fee for each workshop. The four workshops that will run concurrently and will be offered twice during the day are titled: Public Policy and Black Americans; Computer Applications in the Social Sciences; From Slavery to Bakke: The Constitution and Black Americans; and the Art of Fund Raising: Increasing Resources for Community Organizations and Social Science Researchers.

For information on participating in the workshops call Yolando Robinson or Michael Bailey at the Ohio State University Black Studies Dept., 422-3700.

EXHIBITION—Walt Neil stands in front of his mural painted on the side of the building at Mt. Vernon Ave. and 20th St. His murals are on buildings throughout Columbus. Art for Community Expression will begin its sixth visual artist exhibition series April 14 with paintings by Neil. The opening reception will be held from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Model Neighborhood Facility, 1393 E. Broad St. The exhibition will continue through May 12.

Paintings by Neil set for exhibition

Art for Community Expression, Inc., will begin its sixth visual artist exhibition series April 14 with artist Walt Neil. The opening reception will be from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Model Neighborhood Facility, 1393 East Broad St. The exhibition will continue through May 12.

More Columbusites see Neil's art than any other artist. Not only is his work hanging on the walls of many private collectors, but his work is also on the side of many buildings throughout Columbus.

The thirty-year-old Columbus native enjoys traveling and he paints the town red, yellow, blue and all the colors of the rainbow wherever he goes. His murals are on buildings from Atlanta to Seattle.

When the public-minded artist is not creating murals for buildings, he is creating in his studio. During the past winter, Neil has created many new pieces for the spring exhibition.

Neil's latest exhibitions include the Ohio State University and the State Office Tower building. He recently received The Columbus Dispatch Community Service Award in the category of advancement of culture, individual.

Neil attended Oakwood College in Huntsville, Ala., and the Columbus College of Art and Design. He has been painting professionally for 13 years and has recently established a partnership business, Eden Art, to market his work. The address is Eden Art, P.O. Box 656, Westerville, O., 43081.

Carrousel Joreece Smith brings academy awards show to Columbus

Somewhere around 1828, our old friend Noah Webster defined creativity as the quality of producing through imaginative skills. From time to time over the past year, I have talked about Columbusites who display this quality in various forms. I say in various forms because creativity is not confined to just one form of expression.

Take for example, the poem-dramas and singing forms expressed by Dr. Anna Bishop ... OR the flower arranging skills of Lois Page ... OR the seamstress/tailoring designs of Mary Milner and Rebecca Redman ... OR the comforting inspirational words placed together by the Rev. Leon Troy ... OR the sense of awe created by pianist/organist Joyce Robinson ... OR the forming of an idea like Centre Stage by Catherine Willis ... OR the execution of magnificent parties by Rosalie Rosemond ... OR the designing/furnishing of a breathtaking home by Gloria Jefferson ... OR developing creative management concepts in hospital affairs by Jim Jackson ... and the list could go on and on and on.

Columbus has talented and going to share with you now a person who without question qualifies as a creative being.

You all know Joreece Smith, wife of Harold Smith. Joreece retired about one year ago as the Director of Southside Day Care Center where she spent ship, foster congenial attitudes, etc. They also contribute to community causes. Since each meeting is hosted by a different member, Joreece decided to get rid of the Winter blah's and to thoroughly entertain her club sisters when her turn came around to host. When she was in California vacationing and dropped into Hollywood, she was immediately struck by all of the fanfare and hustle and bustle associated with preparation for the National Academy Awards.

The light struck, and Joreece being as smart as she is, made many purchases there to carry out the theme of her meeting when she returned to Columbus ... and from all of the phone calls I received about her meeting AND after looking at the mementoes, she carried out her theme royally. What happened was that the Academy Awards produced and directed by Joreece and Harold Smith came to Columbus!

But, let me start at the beginning. After Joreece had the theme of her meeting deeply implanted in her mind, she went about making appropriate arrangements that began with the invitation to her meeting. Instead of the usual folded or card-like invitation as unique and pretty as they are that most of us send, Joreece's was in the form of a 16mm movie reel. Yeap, you read it right — a black movie reel with a gold insignia on it. Black ribbon was used in place of film and was wound around the spool, therefore in order to read the gold inscription, the ribbon had to be unwound from the reel by the reader.

Joreece's club, the Columbus Chapter of Carrousels, Inc. meets seven months a year, and has as its purpose the goals to provide strong friendmeeting. None of the Carrousels suspected what was in store for them that evening. They assembled at the Smiths' home where the business of the club was conducted. OK so far. The magnificent surprise for them was that at the conclusion of their business meeting, Joreece had a white limousine to whisk the members off to the Cavalier's Club where they were in for more carefully planned surprises.

As they alighted from the limousine, a spotlight was put on them, AND each arrival videotaped. Hubby, Harold, and son, Ricardo, resplendent in tuxedos, escorted each lady to her table. As each entered the door to the Clubhouse, she was greeted by a smiling colored picture of Joreece or a carrousel backed in silver, and resting on an easel. Scattered throughout the room were several posters that contained early pictures of the Carrousels.

On each of the posters, pictures of famous entertainers were interspersed among the members' pictures. Music representing major films was played during the awards ceremony, such tunes as "There's No Business Like Show Business," Liza Minelli's tunes from "Cabaret", etc. Joreece created a stage or backdrop with an arch from which white lights twinkled, and highlighted the podium from which the awards (Oscars) were presented. White balloons accented the backdrop while each table sported a centerpiece of a gold carrousel horse with black head plumes riding a gold and black striped pole. Matching gold and black matches emblazoned with the name of the organization and the "awards" date were sprinkled on each table. Each member received a bottle of perfume.

Now, for the awards. Joreece, with her cleverness, took key words from the club's stated purpose, and presented the awards for things related to that purpose such as Most Loyal, Best Morale, Best Attitude toward the Club, etc. Each member received an award, but the suspense mounted because no one knew the award categories or the winners until each was announced. You know how the presenters on the National Academy Awards say — " ... and the winner is ..." then open the oversized envelope? Well, the Smiths did likewise.

Daughter, Candice, was the presenter while Joreece, Harold, and niece, Andrea Cherry, acted as introducers, kibitzers, etc. You see, this was a family endeavor because in addition to those mentioned above, daughter, Tanya, made the table decorations and awards while Candice's boyfriend, William Watson, was in charge of the music and video taping. Now, when Candice announced the category and said, "The winner is ..." she opened an oversized shiny gold folder that had the category inscribed in black on the cover with the recipient's name on the inside. Each awardee received a white and gold satin and lace sequined stuffed carrousel horse on a white and gold stand that was about 18 inches high.

Exquisite! Joreece's creativity wasn't over yet. The piece de resistance was the solid brass carrousel horse on a stand (THE OSCAR) that was presented to Marcia Connelly as The Carrousel of the Year. A solid brass letter opener with a carrousel horse on the end was presented to the Carratella of the Year (spouse/escort) who turned out to be John Huggard. (The thank you card that John designed, calligraphed, and sent to Joreece was also glamorous and a work of art!!!) Oh, I forgot to mention that slides of Carrousels dating back to the 60's were projected between award presentations.

For this unique event, Joreece served barbecued wing dings, pizza bites, fresh delicious fruit, deviled eggs garnished with caviar, pimentoes,

Mecca Temple #1 to host annual potentate affair

Mecca Temple No. 1 Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine 99 N. Monroe Ave. will host their annual Potentate's Dinner-Dance on Saturday April 27, at the Sinclair Plaza Hotel, 4900 Sinclair Road.

Mecca Temple has in the past made various donations to many worthwhile charities in the community, aiding in the promotion of better health care for disabled children, community affairs that have a direct bearing on the Black community, and to many others causes that work in the service of mankind to uplift the unfortunate in our community.

The planning committee is proud to announce their selection of Center Stage Theatre, a very special cultural art center which specializes in art forms, painting, composing, sculpturing and acting, as the recipient of Mecca Temple's 1985 charity donation.

Center Stage provides the only Black-oriented forum for beginning actors, singers, playwrights and dancers to display and develop their talents.

She also missed the special speech and gift Joreece had for her, you know, like the Special Award Category at the National Academy Awards ceremony. That's ok, Glenna, because Joreece kept the gift for you.

With Grateful Appreciation

So long Columbus and thanks! I'm leaving for California to join my husband (Herman McBroom) after being separated for 29 years. On Feb. 6, 1985 we were remarried in California.

I want to go there but it is so hard leaving here (Columbus). I just didn't want to go without leaving a word of appreciation to all my relatives, friends and customers.

From Kentucky I came here in 1951. My sister, Gertrude McElroy (Thank You!) sent me to beauty college in 1960. I worked with her and others at the FASHIONETTA BEAUTY BAR for 22 beautiful years. To my regret I had to leave there 18 months ago. I have been currently working at ARIES BEAUTY SHOP, 743 E. Long St., with two wonderful ladies, Mrs. Clara Rumph and Esther Betts. My thanks to all.

way, that led to the third floor offices of the newspaper at 2600 South Michigan Ave. Allegedly, he concealed a .22 caliber rifle between two elongated cardboard slabs. Reportedly, he then entered a rear office and opened fire on Charles Armstrong Jr., the paper's 24-year-old circulation manager. The bullet lodged in his throat, according to reports.

A long-time employee of Metro News, who asked not to be identified said that Armstrong Jr. is in serious, but stable condition at Michael Reese Hospital. "Charles says he saw the gun and put his hands to his face," said the employee.

Evans, a rejected former suitor of Armstrong's daughter, then entered the inner offices where he found Armstrong, Sr. in a hallway. He then allegedly fired the fatal shot, hitting Armstrong in the chest. Armstrong was pronounced "dead on arrival" at the Michael Reese Medical Center, which is just a few blocks from the newspaper office.

According to police, Evans ran into a darkroom after the shooting, and grabbed a container of photo processing liquid. He drank a portion of the liquid, before fleeing to the Southside Chicago neighborhood.

The gunman was found by police, sprawled in an alley near the newspaper's office. He was suffering from internal burns, caused by the acid-like chemical photo fixer.

According to authorities, Evans underwent surgery at Cook County Hospital for chemical burns to his esophagus and stomach. He is reported to be in serious condition.

The unidentified employee contends that Evans had entered the newspaper office before with a gun and making threats. During that time, he allegedly abducted Patricia, Armstrong's daughter, from the office and carried her to the parking lot. Before being dissuaded, he fired several shots into the air.

She also added that the entire Armstrong family had become involved, including having Evans arrested, barring him from their home and guarding Patricia against him. "Everyone knew something was going to happen—nothing worked," said the employee.

Armstrong had a long, and often controversial, career as a newspaper publisher, which began with his newspaper in Harvey as the Chicago South Suburban News, in 1965. He was noted for taking unpopular stances on issues that threatened the rights of Black people and the underdog. His methods were often questioned, but he got results in his hard hitting "telling it like it is" philosophy of journalism.

Born in Nashville, Tennessee, in 1923, Armstrong was a strong believer in education. He was a graduate of Parker High School (now Robeson) in Chicago and after a hitch in the U.S. Army completed his studies at Fisk University, where he graduated with honors in 1950. He continued graduate studies at Chicago's DePaul University. Later, Armstrong became a teacher in the Chicago public school system, where he remained for a number of years as a history teacher.

Always aware of the inequities in the world, Armstrong was forever speaking out about the injustices which continued to smother a race of people. He thought the answer was through the political arena. He held several local leadership positions in the Republican party. He was precinct captain and president of the 4th Ward Republican Organization from 1961 to 1962. Armstrong ran for Alderman of the 4th Ward in 1963, but was unsuccessful in his bid for the seat.

Although his political aspirations was not as successful as his newspaper career, Armstrong was very active and dedicated to his profession. He was a long time member of the National Newspaper Publishers Association, a national Organization of black news-

ON THE TEE

By FRANK GRAVELEY

The winter is over, and spring is here at last. From every golf course you will hear the words: Fore! Someone will step onto the tee take out a little white peg, a golf ball, tee it up, pull the driver from the bag and swing at the ball and hope he didn't, quit on the shot and hit it out of bounds. That fear would be lessened if the golfer has put in some time on the practice range.

All the world's top golfers will tell you after they have played a round of golf that only a few shots have been struck perfectly, the rest were hit slightly off center of the clubface. Even so the ball came off straight enough and in many cases earned the applause of the galleries. This means that the golfer's search for perfection goes on, and the only place he will find it is out on the practice ground.

When you are out on the practice range remember you are there to build up your swing rhythm, you can't simulate actual pressures or conditions there, but you can play shots that you think you will have to play during your round. Thirty minutes on the practice tee with twenty five balls and a maximum concentration is worth two hours of thoughtless slugging with a thousand balls. Always pick a target to aim at, it can be a tree, a bush, a patch of brown grass, anything. This will stop the temptation to try and out hit each successive shot. The purpose of practicing is to develop a repeating swing to hit the ball straight at a consistent length. Practice from good lies unless you are trying to play a particular shot. Hit from level ground to groove a repeating swing which is all golf is, a repeating swing: once it repeats, you can make it work for you, no matter how it looks.

Don't practice with old mis-shaped dirty golf balls, the dimples are there for a purpose and when a ball is damaged, it seldom flies true and can mislead you into thinking you are hitting the ball incorrectly. Why spend ten minutes hitting balls then take twice as long looking for them? Hit clean balls.

Make your practice sessions interesting or you will become bored and careless. Set targets for yourself, such as when ironing out a chipping problem place a ball on the ground a few yards in front of you and try to chip ten or twelve balls into a three foot circle around that ball. For the golfer who has a habit of quitting on shots practice hitting from the rough, the grass will offer resistance to your clubhead, forcing you to hit down and through the ball. Also forcing the club through in this manner helps strengthen your golf muscles.

Unfortunately far too many golfers thoughtlessly practice their faults. Never approach the practice tee without a purpose or a problem to be solved. If the problem is a serious one get help first then you will be able to practice the right things.

Practice your putting by placing several balls on the green and try putting them into an imaginary circle three feet around the cup, and if you are bad from three feet, practice putting from twelve to eighteen inches, get used to the ball.

In the military going into the hole. Golf is like life, you only get out of it what you put into it. There is a lot of camaraderie in golf among those who take a professional attitude toward the game. Before a round you might be having trouble with your driving. So you walk up to another golfer, possibly a friend, and tell him your problem.

Central State selects Joe as new athletic director

You can add athletic director to the job description of Central State University Head Football Coach Billy Joe. He will replace Dr. Jerome Quarterman whose resignation from the a.d. post is effective June 30.

Joe, a graduate of Villanova University, has also added two coaches to his football staff.

Ohio University grad Theo Lemone will take over for Lonnie Ford as offensive line coach, while Rick Comegy will replace Garnett Purnell as defensive line coach.

Day; all scouts are invited to attend.

Let's go for three on a match with Central State.

One Columbus high school senior, Northland's Curtis Ridley, is among the 13 recruits who announced their intentions to play for Coach Joe in the fall.

Ridley is a 6'3", 250 lb. offensive tackle.

Registration forms for the Special 5 & 10 K Run scheduled for Saturday April 20 at Ohio Stadium are available via mail.

Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Baker Hall Council, Special 5 & 10 K Run, 129 W. 12th Ave., Columbus, OH 43210.

Proceeds from the race, which gives awards to various age groups, go to the Ohio Special Olympics.

For more information call Karien Bielefeld at 424-0713, Don Brown at 424-8665 or Al Chabon 424-1585.

Much has been happening with the "minor" sports at OSU. Vince Panzano has been named NCAA Diving Coach of the past nine years with Karen and Sarah Josephson leading the way.

The 94 points accumulated by the Bucks were three better than the total of defending champs, Arizona.

Half of the 16 all-Americans selected for this year are from OSU. In addition to the Josephson twins, Manton Cote, Missy Morlock, Betsy Visniski, Adrienne Lehman, Ana Amicarella and Anne Schulte received top honors.

Scioto Downs, which begins its racing season Saturday, April 27, is rated by the U.S. Trotting Association as tied for first place as the fastest five-eighths mile race track in North America. Other tracks in that tie are Pocono Downs (Wilkes Barre, Pa.) and Brandywine Raceway (Wilmington, De.).

Michigan State's Sam Vincent has been picked for "The Sporting News" All-America squad along with Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, Memphis State's Keith Lee, St. John's Christ Mullin and Oklahoma's Waymon Tisdale.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION OF THE OHIO BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY FOR INCREASES AND ADJUSTMENTS IN RATES, CHARGES AND RATE STRUCTURE

Pursuant to the requirements of Revised Code Section 4909.19, The Ohio Bell Telephone Company gives notice that on January 18, 1985, it filed an Application (P.U.C.O. Case No. 84-1435-TP-AIR) with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio for authority to increase and adjust its rates and charges and to change its regulations and practices for telecommunications services it provides in Ohio.

This notice contains the substance and prayer of the Application. However, any interested party desiring complete detailed information with respect to all affected rates, charges, regulations and practices should inspect a copy of the Application and all attached schedules at the office of the Commission, 180 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio, or at the following Ohio Bell public business offices during normal business hours: 45 Erieview Plaza, Cleveland; 80 W. Bowery Street, Akron; 401 Cleveland Avenue N.W., Canton; 150 E. Gay Street, Columbus; 369 W. First Street, Dayton; 425 Jefferson Avenue, Toledo; City Centre One, Youngstown. In addition, proposed tariff sheets were mailed on December 14, 1984, to the mayors and legislative authorities of each municipality included in the Application.

RESIDENCE LOCAL EXCHANGE SERVICE

The increases proposed in monthly residence exchange access line rates for flat (unlimited), message and measured service are shown below.

	Flat (Unlimited)		Message		Residence PBX
	1-party	2-party*	1-party	2-party*	Measured	Trunk line
Present:	14.95	11.90	9.50	9.35	6.70	31.80
Proposed:	19.45	15.45	12.35	12.15	8.70	41.35

*The Company is requesting that all 2-party service be eliminated effective May 1, 1986. Customers with 2-party service can retain the service at their present locations until the proposed elimination date.

The Company's request includes a proposed increase in two local service options, Optional Local Area Service and Community Calling. Monthly rates for Optional Local Area Service and Community Calling would generally be increased in proportion to the overall increase in residence basic exchange access lines.

tion, as part of the Company's notification of its intent to file its Application.

This Application affects rates and charges for residence exchange access lines and local service options for customers of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company and, in addition, affects the rates and charges for directory assistance, verification and interrupt services, operator services, automated calling card services, and wire, cable and other materials used for complex service installations. The Company is requesting minimum level pricing for its toll (long distance) calls within its Local Access Transport Areas, Custom Calling services, toll and local operator services, and wire, cable and other materials used for complex service installations.

The affected Ohio Bell Telephone Company tariffs are:

Exchange and Network	(P.U.C.O. No. 1)
Services Tariff
Message Toll	(P.U.C.O. No. 7)
Service Tariff

Any person, firm, corporation or association may file, pursuant to Revised Code Section 4909.19, objections to the proposed increases and adjustments in rates and charges, and to the proposed changes in regulations and practices and rate structure affecting the same. The objections may allege that such Application contains proposals that are unjust and discriminatory or unreasonable. Recommendations which differ from the Application may be made by the Staff of the Public Utilities Commission or by intervening parties and may be adopted by the Commission.

PERCENTAGE INCREASE

Should the increase be granted in full, the average percentage increase in rate for a representative residential subscriber is 30 percent. No basic exchange increase is proposed for non-residential subscribers. The proposed increase for residential basic exchange services and local service options increases Ohio Bell operating revenue by 8.18 percent. All other proposed increases amount to 1.79 percent of operating revenue. These increases include directory assistance, verification and interrupt services, automated calling card calls, operator services and prices for wire, cable and other materials used for complex service installations for residential and non-residential subscribers.

MINIMUM LEVEL PRICING

Ohio Bell is proposing that its minimum level pricing structure apply to pricing for wire, cable and other materials used for complex service installations, Local Access Transport Area toll (long distance) calls, Custom Calling services, and toll and local operator services. Rates and charges constituting the prices to be charged at any given time are covered in pricing lists furnished to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio by the Company and may vary from the minimum to a maximum of 2 times the minimum level. The Company can adjust its prices with appropriate notice to the Commission.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION

The prayer of the Application requests the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio to do the following:

(a) Find that the present rates and charges which are proposed to be changed and the regulations and practices affecting the same are unjust, unreasonable and insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the services rendered;

(b) Find that the proposed rates and charges and regulations and practices are just and reasonable and will provide not more than a fair and reasonable rate of return on the value of Applicant's property actually used and useful for the convenience of the public;

(c) Approve the filing of the proposed schedule sheets contained in Schedule E-1 filed herewith and made a part hereof, modified to reflect such revisions thereof as may become effective pursuant to orders of this Commission, during the interim between the filing of this Application and the date upon which said schedule sheets become effective;

(d) Order that said proposed schedule sheets become effective immediately upon filing;

(e) Approve the withdrawal of the schedule sheets which are proposed to be changed contained in Schedule E-2 filed herewith and made a part hereof, modified to reflect such revisions thereof as may become effective, pursuant to Orders of this Commission, during the interim between the filing of this Application and the date upon which said schedule sheets are approved for withdrawal;

(f) Grant such other and further relief as Applicant is reasonably entitled to in the premises.

The form of this notice has been approved by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

"IF THERE'S A WAY TO HELP A CUSTOMER OUT OF A BILL-PAYING BIND AND AVOID SHUTOFF, WE'LL FIND IT."

"For our customers facing gas service shutoff because of bill-paying problems, now is a critical time, because we have only a few days to find an answer to the problem, and keep service on.

"So we urge you to come in and talk to us right away. We understand that circumstances can make it hard to keep up with bills — especially winter utility bills — and there are many ways we can help you work something out.

"When you come in, we'll explain some extended payment plans which may help you; and the availability of some assistance funds, including a program that limits the amount of utility payments to 15% of income, for those who qualify.

"Right now, though, the important thing is that you come in to your Columbia Gas office as soon as possible. Let's sit down together, and we'll do whatever we can to work out a payment plan. All we ask is the chance."
